

Continuing Professional Development

Body Work in Counselling and Psychotherapy

Led by: Joanna Beazley Richards, MSc, TSTA, Cpsychol.

Saturday 24 March 2018 (9.30 to 4.30)

This workshop will explore a range of ways in which counsellors and psychotherapists can work with clients' embodied issues

From initial meeting and initial assessment, to ongoing assessment and the treatment itself, Joanna recommends that both client and therapist pay close attention to the observable and more subtle ways in which the body plays its part in the client's and therapist's experience.

About the leader

Joanna Beazley Richards first trained in Reichian body psychotherapy in the late 1960s and 1970s, undertaking a training analysis with Dr Robert Ollendorff, Wilhelm Reich's brother in law. She went on to attend workshops with Joe Cassius, who combined bioenergetics and TA. During the late 1980s and early 1990s, she trained with babette Rothschild and Michael Gavin. She has always incorporated bodywork in her work as a psychotherapist and Clinical Psychologist.
